

“The Fatal Accident”

By: Jeramie

As the morning dew covered the grass and the trees, the wind blew a chilly breeze. The grass was tall and protected us from that chilly breeze. The trees were, however, bare with hardly any leaves. My partner and I got up from our warm cozy beds as soon as the sun hit our faces. We were hungry and decided to find something to eat. My partner called to friends and family telling them to get up out of their beds. Within minutes everyone was getting up and lifting their heads up high. Then we began our search for food. We found plenty of fruit and vegetables. A friend even found a rare delicious vegetable growing near our beds. The vegetable was so good we had to get some, others have called them beans, but we call them soy beans. We ate till our stomachs were full and then started back toward our beds.

As we got about half way back toward our bed's there was a really strange noise coming from near the trees. My partner and I took the lead and our friends and family followed, while being very alert. Everyone was told to stay back as I checked it out. My partner followed me toward the noise. All of a sudden we saw two weird creatures and ran back to our friends and family. When we got there we told everyone to lie down, stay where you're at and don't move. Within minutes we no longer could hear the noise; I went to check it out and then told everyone the coast was clear. My partner was the first by my side to watch. We watched the area for a few minutes, and then we smelled something unusual. We've never smelled it before, and everyone got nervous. Two minutes passed, and within seconds we heard a noise like no other. I saw my partner fall to the ground and I felt something hit me in the chest. I tried to run but could not move. These weird creatures came and picked our heads up and I saw bright flashing.

They dragged us to their vehicles and threw us in the back of it. Thirty minutes passed, and I could hardly breathe as they lifted us from the ground by our back legs. Then all of a sudden I felt a sharp pain going down my chest and my stomach. I looked over at my partner and his guts were hanging out of him. Next I saw my guts hanging in front of my face. Then my guts fell on the ground under my head. The creatures were starting to cut my skin off of my body. With one final look I asked myself what I did to deserve this torture. Right before I closed my eyes the creatures said to each other, “Nice job. Those are two monster deer, and the one I shot is a trophy buck. His head is going to hang on my wall forever.”
