

“2014”

When the disaster of Twenty Twelve hit, there were very few survivors. Ninety percent of the U.S. was destroyed by the natural disasters, along with most other countries. Two countries survived completely; Russia and China. Each knew that the rest of the world has been destroyed. It took two years to take over what was remaining of the U.S. They would control everything. The remaining ten percent of the U.S. would not stand for this. So they joined together and fought in Twenty Fourteen.

A squad of armed men was patrolling the streets of New York City, knowing Russia and China were on their way. Snow covered the ground. The sounds of gun shots and soldiers screaming filled the air. One last shot went off. The scream ended. And with that shot, the snow slowly became red.

The enemy foot soldiers were quickly approaching, when the squad leader “Tommy” ordered the rest of the squad to take nearby cover. Within minutes the fight began. The snow came down harder, and the wind picked up. Planes were flying over informing the foot patrol where Tommy was. Russia and China wanted him dead. Seconds later bombs dropped, which filled the streets with blood. The bombs missed Tommy.

The fight went on for hours. The snow was coming down in buckets. The wind was whipping. Soon after, Tommy was shot in the leg. He fell to the ground. Blood was gushing out of his leg. Tommy screamed at the top of his lungs as he crawled to a nearby street corner. More and more men were being shot. As Tommy crawled a jet flew over him. A loud noise filled the air. Bombs were dropping. Huge explosions went off. No one heard or saw Tommy after that. The survivors gave up. They became P.O.W’s. Russia and China won the war.

Soon after China and Russia, each wanted more power. A new war began. They fought between each other until everyone was dead.
